Andrew Vose

Senior, University of Washington

Andrew is working toward his Construction Management degree at the University of Washington. He is a member of the AGC student club and the NECA Green Energy Challenge team.

Originally from San Francisco, Andrew moved to Seattle for the Construction Management department at UW. He has always enjoyed working with his hands, and after visiting a job site in the Bay Area, became fascinated with the work it takes to manage construction projects. His goal is to become a project manager on the West Coast. He recently completed an internship with Cochran Inc. gaining experience in the MEP coordination process.

After graduation, Andrew hopes to remain on the West Coast and find a firm that specializes in MEP coordination. Andrew is a man of many interests and hobbies, including acting, volunteering as an adult leader with the Boy Scouts of America, and learning about the natural world.
