Connor Schneider

Senior, Washington State University

Connor is working toward his Construction Management degree in addition to completing a degree in architectural studies, and is working on furthering his education with a Masters of Architecture at Washington State University. He is an active member of the Associated Students of Construction Management, the Design Build Institute of America student chapter, the Associated Schools of Construction, and the American Institute of Architecture Students.

Connor has been involved in the construction industry since he was a child helping his father. He is seeking employment as a project manager or a project engineer for a Pacific Northwest company to start his career, but would ultimately like to be involved in a design-build firm to implement his knowledge of both architecture and construction management. His ideal project is a mix between a health-care facility and a mixed-use building. During the summer of 2015, Connor served as an engineer intern for Sellen Construction in Seattle.

Upon graduation, Connor hopes to join the construction industry and focus on the Pacific Northwest. Ultimately, his long term goal is to become a project manager. In his spare time, he enjoys wakeboarding, hiking, and boating in the summer, and snowmobiling and snowboarding in the winter with friends and family.
