Reem Ibrahim

Senior, University of Washington

Reem is working toward her Construction Management degree at the University of Washington. Her interest for built environments began in Houston, where she had lived most of her life. She went to the University of Houston pursuing a degree in Architecture, but upon moving to Washington, she said she decided to change her major to something more technical and management-savvy.

Reem interned with Skanska this past summer working on projects for Microsoft. She has enjoyed learning about the different construction industries and understanding what the field has to offer.

Upon graduation, Reem hopes to work on projects she will enjoy, regardless of specific construction industry. Her goal is to become a project manager in the near future. She is hopeful about entering the industry after graduation and excited for the new things she will learn.
