

2016-2017 Scholarship Recipient

Larry Johnson Prime Construction Co. Scholarship

Tanner Romo

Senior, Central Washington University

Tanner is working toward his Construction Management degree at Central Washington University. He is a transfer student from Everett Community College, where his baseball team won the NWAACC Championship for the first time in the school's history. He said this was the highest honor of his baseball career. He has played two seasons for CWU, and is spending his senior year focusing on academics and industry involvement. Tanner is a recipient of the Foundation's 2015-2016 Howard S. Lease Memorial Scholarship, and the 2015-2016 Larry Johnson/Prime Construction Co. Scholarship.

His first exposure to construction was working on the Grounds Crew and Engineering Practices with the Silverdale Water District. During this experience, he had the opportunity to ride along with the engineer inspector and was able to speak with different superintendents as their crews laid water mains. Working for the Water District influenced his decision to choose a career in construction. Tanner's ultimate goal is to work as a project superintendent or project manager for Walsh Construction, where he has interned for the last two summers.
