Jose Garibay

Senior, Washington State University

My name is Jose Garibay and I am working toward my Construction Management degree at Washington State University. I am a member of the Associated Students of Construction Management club and have been a part of the Virtual Design and Construction Reno competition team.

I got interested in the construction industry after working as a framer for residential construction. Growing up, I always enjoyed helping my dad with remodeling projects around the house and I helped him whenever I could. After graduating high school in 2014, I was thrilled to find out I could pursue a degree in Construction Management. This spring, I will graduate from Washington State University with a Bachelor's Degree in Construction Management.

I have worked for Andersen Construction in Seattle for last two summers as a project engineer. I have had the opportunity to work on a variety of projects, including a two-story 60,000-square foot hospital expansion and renovation on Whidbey Island, a 170,000-square foot renovation, and a 10,000-square foot expansion to a retirement facility in Queen Anne. After graduating college, my goal is to work for a general contractor long-term. I want to land in a company that aligns with my personal desires and values. I dream of obtaining a position on a corporate level by always working hard and hope to work up the ranks of a company by the time I retire.
