Kye Johnson

Senior, University of Washington

My name is Kye Johnson, and I am working toward my Construction Management degree at the University of Washington. I am an active member of the Habitat for Humanity student chapter, a member of the Construction Management honor society, and a teammate of the new ASC Virtual Design and Construction student competition team.

Construction has interested me ever since my dad took me to his construction sites as a kid. Seeing how everything came together got me really interested in the process of building. As I got older, my dad would let me help him with improvements around the house to gain some basic knowledge about construction, particularly in carpentry. I am currently interning with Lydig Construction in the special projects department working on bids for multiple projects.

After graduation, I want to build my portfolio with a variety of projects and experiences that will help me develop me into a successful project manager. In the future, I would like to support my company's intern program and be involved in upper management. In my spare time, I enjoy hiking, playing soccer, cliff jumping, and spending time with friends and family.
