Panghyun “Logan” Chun

Graduate Student, University of Washington

My name is Logan, and I am pursuing my degree in Construction Management at the University of Washington. I am an international student from South Korea and have been studying abroad since 2007. I first became interested in construction when I was working in the military. I served in the Republic of Korean Army as a tank operator. While serving, I was exposed to numerous small construction projects for my base.

I have a strong interest in high-rise buildings and commercial projects, which focus on modern building construction. I have been working as an intern for Turner Construction since November 2015. I worked on the 1st and Stewart apartment and hotel project until February 2016, and then moved to the 2nd and Pine high-rise apartment project in the heart of downtown Seattle. I plan to stay on with Turner Construction after graduation.

In the near future, I hope to achieve my Master's in Construction Management. Moreover, I want to be involved thoroughly within the industry internationally. I am looking forward to expanding my knowledge through my education and continuing internship. In my spare time, I enjoy playing soccer, hiking, boating, travelling, and hanging out with friends.

Additionally, Logan was a recipient of the 2016-2017 AGC Education Foundation's Employees of GLY Construction Scholarship.
