Senior, Central Washington University

My name is Ty Johnston and I am working toward my Construction Management degree at Central Washington University. I am extremely excited to be a senior. This year I will participate in our student AGC chapter and the associated events.

I have been interested in construction since I was a little boy. My father was a cabinet builder and owned his own remodeling company. I spent many hours in the shop learning how to create something with my hands. The projects started out small but grew increasingly larger until I was building entire homes from the ground up. My love for the construction industry has led me to pursue a career where I get to see large scale projects transform from sketches on paper to functional structures.

Throughout my studies at CWU, I have been working full-time as an Estimator for Just Right Cleaning and Construction, a restoration company in Moses Lake, WA. I enjoy writing estimates to rebuild structures damaged by water, fire, and smoke. This past summer I had the opportunity to intern with IMCO Construction. I really enjoyed learning about the heavy civil side of the industry.

In my spare time my wife and I enjoy camping, fishing, and playing outside with our four little boys.
