Colin Hudacek

Senior, University of Washington

My name is Colin Hudacek, and I am pursuing a degree in Construction Management at the University of Washington. As a student I have been involved in a variety of extracurricular organizations with the goal of developing a diverse and well-rounded understanding of the construction industry. Throughout my Junior year I participated as a member of the Mechanical Contractors Association (MCA) student chapter and was President of the National Electrical Contractors Association (NECA) student chapter. I currently sit on the AGC student chapter council. This academic year, I will participate in the MCA, the Design-Build Institute of America (DBIA), and the Associated Schools of Construction Design-Build student chapters as acting President for each organization.

As the son of two architects, I was exposed to the construction industry at a very young age and developed a sincere passion for the built environment. In my continued pursuit to explore the various opportunities within the industry, I have worked as an intern at both GLY and Sellen Construction. With a growing interest in specialty mechanical contracting I have recently started interning as a Construction Project Engineer with McKinstry. Over these past several years, I have developed a passion for different fields including construction technology, labor relations, and sustainability.

In my spare time I enjoy producing music and playing guitar, piano and ukulele. Additionally, I love the outdoors, hiking, snowboarding and am a self-proclaimed movie critic.
